Adrian Johnson

'All Young People Are Natural Surrealists', poetry and craft workshop

Adrian Johnson is a writer and playwright who lives and works in the Black Country as well as spending time in and around Solihull.

Adrian studied Art and Drama at Nottingham Trent Polytechnic and English at Leicester De Montfort University. He has written for The Guardian and once upon a time was Birmingham Poet Laureate.

Instagram: @adrianjohnson6834 Adrian's writing is inspired by early Ian McMillan and Henry Normal and he has lead poetry and storytelling workshops in museums and libraries around the West Midlands.

Adrian invites family groups aged 6 years and above to join in for some surreally good fun and games, colouring, pasting together mini dreamscapes inspired by Solihull and sharing new poems created on the day and specially commissioned new pieces including a swinging little number inspired by Touchwood icon - Gordon the Monkey!
